THE MULTI-ONE

By George Onsy (EGYPT)

I'm one
 Yes, I'm only one,
 The human being
 That God brought
 To this existence
 Of multiplicity.
 I have one tongue
 To speak out
 My joys and sorrows
 Though heard
 In many languages.
 I have one skin
 That feels caresses
 And whip's lashes
 Though looks
 In many colours.
 I have one heart
 Beating on rhythms
 Of likes and dislikes
 Of faith and doubt
 Though following
 Many religions.
 I have one mind
 That tries to tell me

I AM CRYING YOU, MORNING

By Pavol Janik, PhD (SLOVAKIA)

Translated by Smiljana Piksiades (CANADA)

Behind the horizon the light is spraying.
 The sky tremble's like a tear.
 The winged summer wilts.
 Through the algae's a lonesome dew slides.
 Trees hold empty nests in their hands.
 I quietly sing birds psalms.
 In the empty night, empty star is falling.
 Empty gaze of water is still cloudy.
 I read an exclamation of silence
 and drink the morning blood stream aloud.
 The morning is taking deep breaths.
 With its soft palms of the hands,
 the haze crumbles poems.
 Heart's beating is not quieter.
 Unbelievable sobs, like as if it was dead

It's Our ONE God's Grace
Of MULTICULTURALISM.

SHALL I DARE AND DREAM?

By Meri Utkovska (THE REPUBLIC OF NORTH MACEDONIA)

You are a ripple
In the vastness of my ocean,
A notion of rise and fall,
Hide and seek,
You speak to me
Of hyacinths, blue bells and daffodils,
My dear, my love, my will!
Under your branches silence lies still
Your birds carry me
Flower petals and sunshine rays and melodies,
I lie still, do I dare to dream?
I am a ripple in the vastness of an ocean,
A notion of rise And fall,
Hide and seek,
Die and live,
I lie still,
Shall I dare and dream?

WHAT MAKES IT DIFFERENT?

By Carrie Vaccaro Nelkin (USA)

Maybe nothing.
A conceit,
a misshapen idea,
a lie for the dirty dishes
and the pain of paychecks.
A need
and justification
for the cry of I am.

SOMEONE LOVED ME

By Amrita Valan (INDIA)

Someone loved me someone old,
Someone loved me with a heart of gold.
Someone blest me with dreams untold,
Sheltered me from the world so cold.
Watched over the soul I sold,
Bought it back with price untold.

Something old was holding me,
Guiding me, Oh! Guarding me.
A guardian angel, in the realm of thought.
At lightning speed, dream to reality
Was swiftly wrought.

They are He, and He is them,
Multiplicity, in Singularity then.

One in many, and many in one
Realms of love
Peace and blessings
To everyone.

MATCH BOX

By Pragya Suman (INDIA)

The brown match box -
On the window will
Is still there -
Stacked graveyard
The aged - wrinkled - eaten up - days
are laid
In wooden match sticks
Whenever my throat gets smoky

Like everyone else's.
 A gift, is it?
 An excuse to pine
 and reach
 and twist into God's breath?
 It's important
 to know.
 A gift is a treasure,
 whining pretentious.
 Is it the split
 on a hare's lip,
 the shaft in a feather,
 the edge of a coin?
 Nothing, and all?

END

I used to pick them one by one
 To set the fire -
 I burn the corpse
 Day after day.
